

Pedro Amaral * Biography

English

Born in Lisbon (Portugal) in 1972, Pedro Amaral, composer and conductor, is one of the most active European musicians of the young generation.

Studies

He started his studies in composition as a private student of F. Lopes-Graça, in 1986. His general music apprenticeship was made mainly at the Gregorian Institute (1989/91) and the Superior Lisbon Conservatoire (1991/94) where he graduated in composition at Prof. Christopher Bochmann's class.

Pedro Amaral moved then to Paris, to study at the Paris Superior Conservatoire (CNSM) with Emmanuel Nunes. Four years later, he graduated with the "first prize in composition", awarded by unanimous vote of the jury.

Later on, he studied conducting with Peter Eötvös (Eötvös Institute, 2000) and Emilio Pomarico (Milan Scuola Civica, 2001).

Theoretical works

In parallel with his practical apprenticeship, Pedro Amaral proceeded with university studies at the Ecole des Hautes Etudes en Sciences Sociales, in Paris, obtaining a Masters degree in contemporary musicology with a thesis on Stockhausen's "Gruppen" (1998) and, later on, in 2003, a Ph.D. with a thesis on "Momente" and the problematic of musical form in serial music. About this huge analysis, Karlheinz Stockhausen commented, in Le Monde de la Musique (September 2003): "It is an excellent work that learned me a lot of things" - he then invited Pedro Amaral to become his assistant in some specific projects.

Pedro Amaral develops now a permanent activity in musicology, writing articles, giving speeches, participating in colloquiums and presenting workshops and master-classes. From 2007/2008, he is Invited Professor at the University of Evora (Portugal).

The Ircam connection

During his first stay at the French institute IRCAM, in 1998/99, he composed "Transmutations", for piano and live electronics, which was first performed in Paris, in 1999. The work was also chosen to represent Portugal at the UNESCO International Composers Tribune, where it was broadcasted by radio stations all over the world. At the end of 2001 the same piece represented the Portuguese section of ISCM at the World Music Days Festival in Japan. Still in the same year, the city of Porto, European Capital of Culture 2001, commissioned him "Organa", for ensemble and live electronics ad libitum, which was also developed at IRCAM's studios. In 2003/2004, Pedro Amaral came for the third time to IRCAM as "compositeur en recherche". He composed then the long "Script", for percussion and live electronics.
